

UNDECLARED

EXPLORE YOUR OPTIONS IN BUSINESS

Undeclared? We know that not every student arrives with a specific area of focus or major in mind. In fact, each year nearly half of GSB's admitted students arrive as Undeclared students. That's why we have made it easy for you to explore the many majors within GSB before you choose the one that sparks your passion.

We consider students who have decided on business careers but are not quite certain exactly where their path might take them, to be "exploratory." We offer a host of resources to assist in this important journey, including:

- A first-year Enterprise course that covers multiple business topics and disciplines enables you to discover what might interest you. It even allows you to develop a plan to launch your own business.
- Small classes that offer a personalized approach to business education. This helps students to get to know other students and their faculty, fostering conversation and insights into various academic and professional opportunities.
- Bloomberg Businessweek self-assessment exercises, which have been developed by some of the the most respected business faculty in the world, in partnership with global business practitioners. These exercises help match your passion and interest with potential career paths and are very useful for exploratory students.
- A personal program of advising throughout all four of your years, led by our expert business faculty. All exploratory freshmen are assigned an advisor from the Gabelli School faculty.
- Career explorations through the RWU Center for Career & Professional Development. These include Career Fairs, company and internship research, and advice on career opportunities.
- With decades of experience launching students on business careers that range from analytics to risk management to the art and science of leading successful organizations, GSB can work with you on choosing a major that is informative, fun, and closely linked to your professional and personal goals.
- And while you're exploring options, you're completing the Business Core requirement, which can apply toward fulfilling any business major.

MARIO J. GABELLI SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

The Mario J. Gabelli School of Business (GSB) is accredited by AACSB International, which represents the highest standard of achievement for business schools. Only 5% of business schools worldwide hold this accreditation.

Located in the center of campus, GSB hosts the Robert F. Stoico/FIRSTFED Financial Services Center – a high-tech, classroom/trading room that features high-resolution monitors and stock and information feeds in real time. It also hosts the E.L. Wiegand Center for Advanced Financial Education. Bloomberg technology is an integral part of GSB, and students can obtain Bloomberg certification as part of their academic program. Through the innovative rCloud, students have unlimited access from their own devices to virtual desktops customized to business study from anywhere in the world.

At GSB, experiential learning is at the heart of what we do. Students work with real clients on actual projects in the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program (VITA), the Community Partnerships Center, the student investment management program (CAFE), the Fed Challenge and the American Advertising Federation annual competition. Virtually every GSB student, regardless of major, participates in at least one internship for academic credit. Our curriculum is flexible enough to allow for multiple internships.
